Re: Project "Integrated Climate Risk Management for Food Security and Livelihoods in Zimbabwe focusing on Rushinga and Masvingo Districts"

The World Food Programme (WFP) has applied for a US$ 8,788,089 million funding to the Green Climate Fund (GCF) board for the project "Integrated Climate Risk Management for Food Security and Livelihoods in Zimbabwe focusing on Rushinga and Masvingo Districts".

We hereby confirm that the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (SDC) has already committed a total of US$ 2,664,193 to the project for the period 2017-2021, of which US$ 1,104,447 will be used to co-fund the initiative for the period 2019-2021.

We believe that the GCF grant will allow for the further scaling up of successful and innovative climate change adaptation practices in Masvingo and Rushinga districts in Zimbabwe, where the population is highly vulnerable to the impacts of climate change.

The GCF funds will also allow WFP and its partners to extend the scope of their programmes focusing on establishing sustainable food security against climate related shocks, as well as enable WFP to reach more farmers for a longer period of time.

Yours sincerely,
