1. Public consultation process

Public consultation refers to any process for obtaining public input to inform a decision. Generally speaking, public consultation refers rather to formal processes framed by a defined procedure and often subject to a regulatory or legal obligation. Indeed, the GCF and the BOAD make public information and consultation a requirement through their respective policies, starting at the project design stage.

Similarly, Niger's environmental assessment regulations require all project proponents to set up a publicity mechanism to bring information to the attention of stakeholders and take into account their opinions, concerns and expectations regarding the project so that they are integrated into the design of the project.

It is with a view to complying with these various requirements that public consultations and meetings with stakeholders were conducted with various categories of actors in the regions of Agadez, Diffa, Maradi, Tahoua and Zinder.

These public consultations were conducted in accordance with the provisions of the Terms of Reference for the study. They took place at three levels: consultation of technical services at the central and regional levels, consultation of beneficiary communities at the local level and the national workshop to validate the draft study reports.

These consultations resulted in comments and proposals that were taken into account in the preparation of the final reports.

From a methodological point of view, the meetings with the actors took place in the form of interviews for the technical services and in the form of focus groups for certain groups of actors such as cooperatives and other agriculture groups.

The engagement of the stakeholders is formalized through two (2) national workshops for the validation of the project documents.

2. Consultations with technical services

These meetings concerned the following categories of actors: regional and departmental technical services for the environment, agriculture, animal husbandry, rural engineering, ONAHA, the Permanent Secretariat of the Rural Code, agricultural producers' organizations, representatives of municipalities.

Meeting with the Directorates of the Ministry of Agriculture and Animal Husbandry

The session held in the large meeting room of the Ministry in charge of Agriculture brought together the heads of the Central Directorates of the said Ministry and the institutions attached to it like ONAHA. The session was animated by a presentation of Global Lead SA retracing the history of the project at the level of the BOAD, its objectives, the expected results, the project documents to be prepared by Global Lead, the contributions expected from the Nigerien side for the success of the project, the participatory appropriation of the project by the Nigerien side, the knowledge and analysis of the provisional schedule of the mission to formulate the project documents etc... This presentation, which was very much appreciated by the participants, was followed by a series of questions and answers which made it possible to clarify all the outlines of the project, to collect contributions aimed at improving the quality of the work in the field, and to provide the mission with information useful for its efficiency.

Meeting with the Designated National Authority of the Green Climate Fund

The meeting held with the CNEDD mobilized all its staff and its team of experts. The objective of this meeting was to solicit the support of this key institution for all the project formulation activities, to collect its advice, opinions and contributions necessary for the success of the project. In this respect, the CNEDD showed its commitment to the project and its commitment to a follow-up and participation in the different phases of preparation of the project documents.

In its capacity as the Green Climate Fund (GCF) National Designated Authority (NDA), the National Council for Environment and Sustainable Development (CNEDD), insisted during the discussions on the important role it will play in supporting the project in order to increase its chances of approval by the GCCF.

In this perspective, the NDA recommended that the activities supported by the project be aligned with Niger's strategic objectives and priorities and meet the requirements of the GCF. For the Executive Secretary and the experts of the CNEDD, the confidence in the success of the project is total at the Niger level, given the successful experiences already conducted with the Global Lead Cabinet on climate projects in the country. As a result, the delivery of the letter of non-objection within the deadlines is quite predictable.

Meeting with the Ministry in charge of the plan

The meeting at the Ministry of Planning, in particular at the Investment Programming Directorate, made it possible to sensitize the authorities of the said Ministry on the project's interest for Niger and the contribution expected from this institution. It is mainly about the project's timely programming in the commitments of the Niger State, the referral to the BOAD of a request to speed up the closing of the financing once the Green Climate Fund approval has been obtained. The ministry promised to do what is necessary for the success of the project.

Meeting with the Ministry of Finance

The meeting with the Ministry of Finance brought together the heads of the Financial Operations and Reforms General Directorate in charge of the public debt and those of the General Directorate of the Budget. A presentation of the project was made by Global Lead. Ministry officials expressed their enthusiasm about the relevance of the project. They promised to provide all their support for the success of this project which is in line with the priorities of the Niger State.

Meeting with the National Environmental Assessment Office

Formerly the Office of Environmental Assessment and Impact Studies (BEEEI), the National Office of Environmental Assessment (BNEE) informed the mission of new administrative procedures, validation of the terms of reference, analysis of the admissibility of environmental assessment reports and impact studies of any eligible development project and program submitted for assessment to the Ministry of the Environment.

The BNEE is therefore the institution that will have to issue the environmental compliance certificate for the project. The BNEE's Director General reminded the mission that in case all the project sites cannot be clearly identified and analysed, given the deadlines, an Environmental and Social Management Framework (CGES) will be submitted to the BNEE in accordance with the regulations in place and the ToR of the project. However, if the Ministry in charge of agriculture is able to identify the sites in time and if there has been sufficient time to conduct the required analyses, the Environmental and Social Impact Assessment of the project may be submitted by the firm. The new texts that govern environmental assessment in Niger since the end of 2018 were handed over to the mission.

3. Local community consultations

3.2. Concerns expressed, suggestions and recommendations taken into account in the project

The concerns expressed by the populations as well as the suggestions and recommendations made during the various meetings are presented in Table 2. These suggestions and recommendations were taken into account in the formulation of the project documents.

Table 2: Summary of concerns expressed and key suggestions and recommendations

Concerns expressed	Main suggestions and recommendations
Fear of a minority takeover of the project haunts some producers.	To avoid frustration, the involvement of customary and municipal authorities is essential in awareness-raising campaigns aimed at the various stakeholders. As the work is a regional development action, it must be approved by the Regional Council; the authorities must be involved in the launching of the work. This will make it possible to mobilise the region's contributions within the framework of the regional development plan.
The method of land transfer	Setting up a site management committee and providing this committee with statutory texts that define the conditions of access to the site, the roles and responsibilities of the actors, the rights and duties of the members. These texts must be the subject of a consensus between the operators.
Criteria for the availability of developed plots of land	When distributing the developed plots, the officials in charge of conducting the process must ensure that they are accessible to all village nationals, that they are representative of young people and women.

Soil degradation and a worrying decline in agricultural yields	Soil quality and agricultural yields will be enhanced by new cultivation techniques and the promotion of organic manure on irrigated perimeters (Activity 2.2.4).
Difficulties of water supply for small-scale irrigation development	The project provides a solution to this problem through the implementation of a solar pumping system that minimizes the cost of access to the resource. The beneficiaries of the project must be made aware of the need for good individual and collective management of the installations set up. They must have access to this resource without any gender or social discrimination.
Lack of financial means to dispose of agricultural inputs (fertilizers, improved and resistant seeds, phytosanitary products)	The project will support the acquisition of agricultural inputs (fertilizers, improved and drought-resistant seeds) (Activity 2.2.3). It will also contribute to the improvement of the financial means of the beneficiaries through support to the development of income generating activities (IGA) based on the conservation and processing of agricultural products (Activity 2.4.2).
Repetitive pest attack with production losses	An Integrated Pest and Pesticide Management Plan (IPPMP) is being developed as part of the project to this end.
Silting of perimeters	One of the expected results of the project is the protection of productive capital against threats associated with the effects of climate change such as silting and flooding (Activity 1.1.1).
Flooding of perimeters with heavy rains over a relatively short period of time
Involvement of technical services	They will provide technical guidance. This supervision will concern the management committee, which will need not only to provide the structure with texts but also to organize the production. At the producer level, the services will be responsible for training volunteers in production techniques. When ordering inputs, the technical services will be asked to select seeds that are adapted to the soil but also likely to resist pest attacks. On receipt of the seeds, the technical services will be responsible for testing the quality, which will help to avoid frustration and discouragement. In assembling the files, the Technical Services Officers will support the county management and in some cases the POs. In the field of production evaluation, the technical services will train the members of the management committee in the production of reliable statistical data and their archiving. They will train producers in the evaluation of yields and the transmission of data to the members of the management committee. In order to facilitate mentoring, Technical Service staff should be provided with logistical support for on-site travel. In the field of by-product conservation, it is the responsibility of the technical services to support producers through training sessions and to initiate study trips or experiments as needed.
Animal damage	The landscaped perimeters will be fenced off with wire mesh to prevent any damage to the animals.

4. The stakeholder's engagement

The project reports were validated during 2 workshops: one was held in Niamey on the Funding Proposal and its annexes, the Feasibility Study, the Gender Action Plan, etc. and the second in Koni on the Environmental and Social Management Framework (ESMF) and the Integrated Pest and Pesticide Management Plan (IPPMP).

Project Documents presentations and analysis

A very enlightening debate followed the presentations of Global Lead's experts. Several questions were asked by the participants, observations were made, and contributions and amendments were made.

Commissions was set up, had checked and analyzed the project documents on :

- the baseline scenario and the proposals;
- the proposed components and activities;
- the actors' role and the institutional anchoring of the project;
- the proposed activities costs against acceptable standards in the country ;
- the project's alignment with national policies and strategies, as well as the country's international commitments;
- the relevance, coherence and feasibility of the proposed activities as well as the sustainability of the project;
- the actors' role and the institutional anchoring of the project;
- the project in relation to the performance criteria of the Green Climate Fund;
- the gender analysis and the actions proposed for gender mainstreaming within the project;
- The environmental and social management in the framework of the project;
- Etc.

Concerns raised and engagement of the stakeholders

The participants wished for a very great involvement of women in developing the perimeters through important transformation activities that engage women on the project sites.

In order to help farmers to better control agricultural and cropping calendars in a climate change context, the participants focused on technological tools that the project should make available to farmers for better monitoring of weather and environmental conditions in their environment.

The participants expressed enormous expectations of the project's results in that it represents an opportunity for the rural world currently facing serious problems of agricultural production linked to the adverse effects of climate change and a relevant solution to the food insecurity experienced by the country.

On a note of satisfaction, the project documents were validated. The participants thanked the GCF, the BOAD, the DGGR, the CNEDD (GCF NDA) and the Global Lead Cabinet for the quality of the work done and the other partners for their contribution to the development of the project.
